The U.S. and European stock markets ended the session with asymmetrical results.

On Wall Street, the markets fell following the Federal Reserve Banks' third consecutive 75 basis point increase that took rates to 3.00%-3.25%.

Following the FOMC meeting, Fed Chair Powell said, "My main message has not changed since Jackson Hole, the FOMC is strongly resolved to bring inflation down to 2%, and we will keep at it until it is the job is done".

Most U.S. indicators show modest growth in spending and production with solid job gains and an average unemployment rate of 3.70%.

However, inflation remains high, showing supply and demand disparities from the pandemic and across the spectrum high prices.

Voting for the monetary policy action were Jerome H. Powell, Chair; John C. Williams, Vice Chair; Michael S. Barr; Michelle W. Bowman; Lael Brainard; James Bullard; Susan M. Collins; Lisa D. Cook; Esther L. George; Philip N. Jefferson; Loretta J. Mester; and Christopher J. Waller.

Most Central banks globally follow the Fed's lead and are raising rates in their respective countries, including Europe, which has seen high gas prices and shortages heading into winter.

Investors Divesting from Risky Assets:

We see most investors divesting from risky assets, particularly from Cryptocurrency, which over the course of 2022 has led the move from this asset class to safe-haven assets, like the U.S. dollar. The most recent intention to regulate cryptocurrencies adds pressure to the falling fortunes, but we have seen Bitcoin and Ethereum fall all year.
